SIDEKICK LOGISTICS

For property managers, HOA and community managers, and commercial building managers

Donna answers every call about every property. Day and night.

An AI receptionist who knows which property the caller is talking about, whose job the problem is, and what to do next: log the work order, alert the on-call tech, take the ARC request, release the gate code, or book the showing. Residents get an answer. You get a tidy record.

Hear her yourself. Call our demo property line and report a leak, ask about an amenity, or request a showing.

THE PROBLEM

Your phone never stops. Your team can't be on it all day.

Every manager we talked to told us the same thing: the calls are the job, and the calls are what keeps the job from getting done.

After hours is when the pipe bursts, the gate sticks, the elevator stops. A voicemail box does not alert anyone.

3 kinds
of property, three different sets of rules. A rental, a flex building and an HOA do not want the same answer.

Every call becomes a sticky note, a text to the tech, a line in a spreadsheet, and a callback you still owe someone.

WHAT MANAGERS TOLD US THEY NEED

- Someone to pick up every call, in English or Spanish or the resident's language, and take it properly: unit, problem, access, callback number.
- A system that knows an HOA does not fix a homeowner's kitchen sink, and says so politely with the right guidance, instead of opening a work order the board has to close.
- Emergencies that reach the on-call person right now, with a reference number, and escalate on their own if nobody picks up.
- Fewer "where is my request?" calls, because the caller can ask Donna and get the real status.
- Leasing calls that turn into booked showings instead of lost messages.
- No new software to learn. Set it up in an afternoon, see everything in one place.

> RESIDENT "Hi, the disposal at Oakwood 7B is humming and the sink is backing up."
> DONNA "Let's try one thing first: there's a reset button on the bottom of the disposal. Did that help? No? Okay, I'll log it for maintenance. Is it all right for the tech to enter if you're not home, and is there anything we should know about getting in?"
> DONNA "You're set. Reference S R 7 1 1 C 9 8. Someone will be out within two business days and you'll get a text when it's scheduled."

HOW DONNA WORKS

She finds the property first, then follows that property's playbook.

Every property in your portfolio is tagged as a residential rental, a commercial or flex building, or a community association. Donna recognizes the caller, asks which property if she has to, and runs the right rules for the rest of the call.

Residential rentals

- Repairs inside the unit are yours: she gathers the problem, unit, permission to enter and access notes, then opens the work order.
- Suggests the quick fix first (breaker, GFCI, disposal reset) and notes it if it worked.
- Rent: when it's due and where to pay. Never takes card numbers.
- Renters insurance: texts the tenant a secure upload link for their policy.
- Showings and inspections booked at the unit, address on the confirmation.

Commercial and flex

- Base-building problems (roof, elevator, lobby, mains) are yours; in-suite items follow the lease, and Donna reads back what applies.
- After-hours heating and cooling requests with your lead time and "billable per lease" note built in.
- Access cards, keys, visitor pre-registration, after-hours entry.
- Knows who the authorized contacts are at each tenant company and says when sign-off is needed.
- Certificates of insurance from tenants and vendors, with an upload link.

Communities (HOA and condo)

- Common areas, gates, pools and the building shell are the association's; in-home problems get the right guidance, not a work order.
- ARC requests taken in full, with the review clock and "don't start until approved" explained, and an upload link for drawings.
- Violation reports taken neutrally; owners asking about their own notice hear the cure and hearing process.
- Resale certificates and lender questionnaires logged with the statutory due date.
- Gate codes released only to verified residents, read digit by digit. Amenity reservations with fee, deposit and rules.
- Board and annual meetings: dates, agenda, RSVPs and proxies, with the running quorum count.

WEARING TWO HATS

Manage rentals inside a community you also manage? Donna routes the renter's hot-water call to the managed home and the owner's fence request to the association, on the same phone number, without asking you to sort it out.

WHAT YOU GET

Everything a front desk does, plus the follow-through.

Calls, all day and all night

- Answers in under two rings, 24/7, in 25 languages, switching mid-call when the caller does.
- Recognizes returning callers by number and remembers their property, unit and history.
- Transfers live calls to the right person during your hours; takes a message with the details when no one picks up.
- Only answers from your approved knowledge. If she does not know, she takes a message instead of guessing.

Emergencies that actually reach someone

- Flooding, gas, fire, no heat in a freeze, break-ins, elevator entrapment, a stuck gate, loss of power.
- Safety steps read to the caller; the on-call contact alerted by text and email with a one-tap acknowledgement.
- Escalates automatically if nobody confirms. Status read back honestly: "alerted at 2:52 AM, hasn't confirmed yet, it escalates on its own".

Work orders and dispatch

- Every request gets a reference number, a type, a due date and a status you can see.
- Your contractor directory with optional auto-dispatch by trade and property; vendors get the job by text and email with Accept and Done links.
- Owner or board approvals by one-tap link when a job needs sign-off; a decline comes back with a note.
- Vendor and resident access coordination: the vendor offers windows, the resident picks one, everyone is notified, the visit lands on the calendar.

Communities, handled properly

- ARC intake with upload link and decision workflow (approve, deny with hearing text, needs info).
- Violation stages with cure-by dates.
- Amenities, reservations, board records, meeting notices, RSVPs and quorum tracking.
- Association insurance on file so "is that the HOA's or mine?" gets the right answer.

Notices, compliance and leases

- Active notices (elevator out, water shut-off): Donna tells callers up front and does not open duplicate tickets. Broadcast to everyone at the property by text and email.
- Compliance calendar: elevator certs, sprinkler inspections, permits, with reminders and resident access notices.
- Lease ends and rent days on file; reminders before leases expire.

Self-scheduling and texting

- A branded page where prospects book showings and residents schedule inspections or a time with the manager, verified by a one-time code.
- Confirmations and reminders by text from your own number; "C" to confirm, "R" to reschedule, "CANCEL" to cancel, and Donna handles the reply.
- Donna can text a caller the booking link, the office address or your hours on request.

A TUESDAY WITH DONNA

What your week looks like with the phone handled.

TIME	WHAT HAPPENED	WHAT YOU DID
2:52 AM	Homeowner at Sunset Ridge: the community gate is stuck open. Donna logs a security emergency, alerts the community manager by text and email, reads back the reference.	Woke up to a text, tapped "I've got it", called the gate company at 7.
8:10 AM	Title company needs a resale certificate for 204 Sunset Ridge. Donna takes the closing date and delivery email, logs it with the 10-business-day due date.	Saw it in the Resale certs queue. Nothing to re-key.
9:30 AM	Tenant at 1200 Main, Suite 210 wants heating Saturday 8 to 2. Donna checks the 48-hour lead time, notes it's billable, flags that an authorized contact must confirm.	Approved it from the request. The tenant was emailed.
11:05 AM	Prospect asks about a 2-bedroom at Oakwood. Donna answers from your approved listing info and books a showing Thursday at 4 at the unit.	It's on your calendar with the address.
1:40 PM	Renter at Oakwood 7B: no hot water. Donna opens the work order with permission to enter and the garage code; your plumbing rule dispatches Torres Plumbing automatically.	Watched the vendor accept and offer two windows. The renter picked one by text.
3:15 PM	Homeowner calls about a 6-foot cedar fence. Donna takes the ARC request (materials, colors, contractor, start date), explains the review period, texts the upload link for the drawing.	Reviewed the drawing in the ARC queue, approved it with one click.
5:30 PM	"Has anyone been sent for the gate?" Donna reads back the real status: vendor dispatched at 7:14 AM, repair scheduled for tomorrow 10 AM.	Nothing. That call never reached you.
7:00 PM	Owner can't make the annual meeting on the 10th and wants Tom Reyes to carry her proxy. Donna records it and reads back the quorum count.	Nothing.

EVERY ONE OF THESE IS A REAL TEST CALL DONNA HANDLED WHILE WE BUILT HER.

The transcripts live in the dashboard, next to the work order each call created. Nothing in this brochure is a mock-up.

WHY DONNA

Not an answering service. Not a phone tree. Not a chatbot bolted onto your website.

BUILT FOR TRUST

- Donna never quotes a fee, a rule or a deadline that is not in your approved knowledge. When in doubt, she takes a message.
- She never discloses another resident's account, lease or violation, never takes sides, never promises an outcome.
- Gate codes and balances go only to verified residents and owners. Card and bank numbers are never taken over the phone.
- Every call is transcribed and summarized in your dashboard; every text she sends is in your Inbox.
- Your data stays in your account. Each client's properties, contacts and knowledge are isolated.
- Your money is yours. Amenity fees and other payments run through your own Stripe account and settle to you. Sidekick and Donna never hold or route your funds.

GETTING STARTED

Live in an afternoon. No IT project.

1. Tell Donna about you.
   A short guided setup: your company, what you manage (rentals, commercial, communities), your hours, who to transfer to, where to send alerts.

2. Add your properties.
   Name, address, type, on-call contacts. Paste your bylaws, lease rules or FAQs and Donna turns them into answers you approve.

3. Get your number.
   Donna comes with a local phone number (and a matching email address). Forward your office line to it, or publish it directly.

4. Listen to the first calls.
   Every call is transcribed. Tweak an answer, add a contractor, turn on auto-dispatch for plumbing. Donna gets sharper every week.

Included

- Local phone number with texting
- Donna's own email address for your business
- Unlimited properties and contacts
- Work orders, dispatch, approvals, access coordination
- Self-scheduling page, confirmations and reminders
- Dashboard for your whole team, with calls, texts and emails in one place
- Setup help from a person at Sidekick Logistics

Works alongside what you have

Google or Microsoft calendar sync. Email forwarding from your current inbox. Your existing contractors, your existing documents. Nothing to migrate on day one.

TRY HER BEFORE YOU DECIDE

Call our demo property management line right now. Report a dripping faucet at Oakwood 7B, ask when the board meets at Sunset Ridge, or book a showing. That is the same Donna your residents will reach, with your properties and your rules.
