SIDEKICK LOGISTICS

For the trades: HVAC, plumbing, electrical, landscaping, mowing, pool service, handyman, roofing, painting, remodeling and thirty more Donna answers the phone, books the job, and gets you paid. You just do the work.

Donna is an AI receptionist for one-truck and small-crew shops. She picks up every call, quotes from your price list, books the visit with the address, texts the customer, and when you text her DONE she bills the job. No app to learn. No office person to hire. Your money goes straight to your own bank.

Hear her yourself. Call Donna at Sidekick Logistics and ask what we do, what it costs, or to book a time.

THE PROBLEM

You can't answer the phone with your hands in a panel. The job goes to whoever did.

Most people who get your voicemail call the next name on the list. The ones who do leave a message want a callback you don't have time for, and then they need an invoice you'll write at 10 PM.

Missed calls are missed jobs. Nobody waits for a callback when the AC is out.

Paperwork at night

invoices, confirmations, reminders, "what's your address again".

Software you won't use the apps built for this have forty features and a monthly bill per user.

WHAT CONTRACTORS TOLD US

- "I don't want an app. I want to text somebody 'done' and have the bill go out."
- "Half my customers speak Spanish. So does half my crew."
- "Don't touch my money. I want it in my account, not sitting somewhere."
- "I'll pay a flat price. I won't pay per technician, per feature, or per text."
- "If it's an emergency at 2 AM, somebody better get paged."

> CALLER "Hi, my AC quit this afternoon. Can somebody come out?"
> DONNA "I'm sorry, let's get you on the schedule. Is it blowing warm air or not running at all? ... Okay. What's the address? ... Got it, 2210 Pecan Drive. A service call is eighty-nine dollars and that comes off the repair if you go ahead. I have four thirty today or eight tomorrow morning. ... Four thirty it is. And who should I put this under? Thanks, Maria. I'll text the confirmation to this number, and if you reply with a photo of the unit I'll pass it to the tech."

That is a real test call. Donna asked the two questions the tech needs, quoted the trip fee from the price list, booked a real opening, and sent the text.

WHAT DONNA DOES

She's the office. You're the truck.

Answers every call

- Picks up 24/7, in 25 languages. Switches when the caller does.
- Knows your services, prices, trip fee, service area and hours. Only says what you approved.
- Asks the right two or three questions for your trade so the tech arrives ready: heat or cool, breaker tripping, is the water shut off, gate code, dog in the yard.
- Recognizes repeat customers and their address.

Books the visit

- Service calls, estimates and the work itself, each with its own length and fee.
- Address required on every job. Confirmation and day-before reminder by text, from your number.
- Recurring routes for mowing, pool and lawn: book the season once.
- Customers can book from the link on your truck, card or Facebook page.

Runs your day by text

- Text OMW 20 and the customer gets "Joe is on the way, about 20 minutes."
- Text LATE 15, HERE, NEXT for the next stop with a map link, or send a photo to pin it to the job.
- Text DONE. Donna lists the work, asks about add-ons, totals it, and asks: send the invoice now, hold it, or mark it paid?
- Or use the phone app: four big buttons, no training.

Gets you paid

- The customer gets a text with the total and a Pay button. They pay from their phone. You get a text when it lands.
- Cash or check? Tap "They paid me." Invoice closed.
- Every invoice and payment exports to a spreadsheet or QuickBooks.
- Emergencies page the on-call tech by text and escalate if nobody answers.

YOUR MONEY

Your Stripe. Your bank. We never touch a dollar.

Most software in this market holds your payments, charges you to get them faster, and leaves you alone when a customer disputes a charge. Donna doesn't take payments at all. Your customers pay you.

How it works

- Tap Connect Stripe in Donna once. Have a Stripe account already? Sign in. Don't? The same button creates one in about five minutes.
- From then on, every Pay button on your invoices runs through your Stripe account. The money goes to your bank on Stripe's normal schedule.
- Stripe's standard card fee applies (2.9% + 30¢). Donna adds nothing. No instant-payout surcharge, no per-invoice fee.
- Refunds, disputes and payouts: your Stripe dashboard, same as a card reader.

Don't want card payments?

- Skip the Stripe step. Donna still sends the invoice by text and you tap "paid" when they hand you the check.
- Turn it on later with one tap. Nothing else changes.
- Either way, your customer list, your jobs and your invoices are yours. Export any time.

BUILT FOR TRUST

- Donna never quotes a price that isn't on your list. Anything else: "the tech will give you a firm price before any work starts."
- Nothing goes to the customer until you say so. You see the lines and the total before you tap Send.
- Safety first on emergencies: gas smell means "leave the building and call 911" before anything else.
- Every call is transcribed and summarized; every text she sends is in your Inbox.
- Your customers and your knowledge stay in your account. Nothing is shared between businesses.

SET UP

Donna interviews you. In your language. Twenty minutes.

No forms to fill out. Donna asks what you do, what you charge, where you work, when you work and who's on the crew, and sets herself up from your answers. English, Spanish, Vietnamese, Chinese and twenty-one more.

Starter

One-person shop. You're the only one on the schedule.

- Phone answering, booking, texting, reminders
- Text commands and the phone app
- Invoices, Pay button, mark-paid, exports
- Booking link, reviews, win-back

Pro

Owner plus techs. Each tech gets their own jobs, texts and app login. You're bookable only if you want to be.

- Everything in Starter, for the whole crew, no per-user fee
- Dispatch by trade and area
- On-call ladder: emergencies page the first tech, then the next if nobody acknowledges
- Owner sees every job, every invoice, every text

WHAT YOU'LL NEED

- Your services and prices (or a photo of your rate sheet; Donna reads it).
- Your trip or service-call fee, if you have one, and whether it comes off the work.
- The zip codes or towns you cover, your hours, and your cell for transfers and emergencies.
- Optional: your Stripe login, or five minutes to create one.
